BOY OUT OF THE COUNTRY REVIEWED

I've just returned from the Dunolly Town Hall where the dramatic show Boy out of the Country played for one day only. What a pity it was here for such a short time because word of mouth recommendation would've seen the next show a sell-out. This show was just magnificent! The minimal cast of only five players was so good you truly believed that the characters they portrayed were their own persona. Jane Clifton, as the matriarch Margaret Smeaton, lonely in her shabby flat, but defending her older son Gordon who said it was 'for the best', was a poignant blend of sharpness and senility.

Trent Baker played Gordon, the older son who was a pragmatist, accepting that times were changing and cashing in on it for the sake of his family. Martin Blum was Hunter, the prodigal younger son, who on returning after a seven year absence was angry and shocked that his home town was being swallowed up by developers and that his brother had sold off the family farm. The love/hate relationship of the two brothers was pivotal to the storyline; but as well, the history that Hunter had with Rachel, Gordon's wife, played by Amanda Labonte, made for some tense moments. And finally, Christopher Bunworth as police Sergeant Walker, who had known the boys since they were children, was a blend of country bumpkin and shrewd operator.

The show had a number of subplots and was dramatic yet sometimes comical. It was confronting with plain no-holds-barred language, definitely poignant and touching, as it concentrated on the changing face of small country towns and the effects on individual people. Highly recommended.

Last Sunday Dunolly was fortunate to have a visit from the Larrikin Ensemble Theatre performing Boy out of the Country. The play was set in a country town focusing on one family in particular affected by developers buying up local properties for subdivision into small blocks. The action was centred on the reactions and subsequent interactions between two brothers, one married and established in the town and the other returned after a seven year absence. The bone of contention was the imminent sale of the family farm and their elderly mother who had been moved into a dreary little flat by the older thus creating а rift between brothers. Emotions run high and the ensuing hostilities are tempered down by the mediation of the down to earth local police sergeant, played by Christopher Bunworth, who gives an outstanding performance.

Jane Clifton, known to many theatre goers and TV viewers, gave an excellent and convincing portrayal of the mother, digging deep into past happy memories but artfully steering clear of the present conflict. Amanda Labonte competently plays the wife who is caught up in the middle of the tense drama.

The two brothers were played by Trent Baker and Martin Blum.

I was completely absorbed and captivated by this riveting performance by such a small ensemble where each and every cast member contributed so professionally to a most satisfying piece of theatre.

Rosie's Ramble

Good to see that young Bernard has his priorities right – money before country (not playing for Australia in the Olympics).

The rain over the last few weeks has been great, everything has a clean look about it, the country is, all of a sudden, green. What passes for lawn at Ramble Ranch is about 50/50 good grass and the best selection of weeds I have seen in quite a while. Will have to find the glyphosate that should annoy someone!

I am puzzled as to why anyone would leave a parcel at the Post Office long enough to have to pay a collection fee. I can't pick up my parcels quickly enough, even if I know what's in it, deprived childhood??

I went to the fashion parade at the Uniting Church last week; it is always interesting the way smart outfits are made up of unwanted clothes, the afternoon tea was pretty good too.

I do wish the Leader of the Opposition would cease and desist from saying, "I and my Party will....." Surely "My party and I will....." would sound better. Perhaps the "Igo" is bigger than the party.

We are planning a ramble interstate this week; though by the time you are reading this we should be home again.

Here are some engagement notices I have collected over the years, the way the names go together amuses me. Cooper & Creek, Worts & Legge, Burns & Hay.

Film Review: "The story of a love affair in its death throws."

Wanted: Two painters - confident tradesmen need only apply.

Real Estate: The white rendered building has also been freshly painted inside and out with new salmon pink carpet and quality upholstered drapes (I wish I had seen this one).

What a treat

It was a privilege to see such fine actors performing at the Dunolly Town Hall last Sunday. Boy out of the Country is a raw play about family, property and community and the five actors who performed it were excellent.

Well done to all concerned and congratulations to the Dunolly Historic Precinct committee for presenting it. Hopefully there will be many more to follow, I'll certainly be queuing up to attend.

Jan Brock and her team deserve to be congratulated for the delicious afternoon tea, which was served before the play on Sunday. Well done Jan.

Ode to a mushroom

My Dad loved mushrooms. Not the sort you buy in little plastic tubs from the supermarket but the ones that are growing everywhere in our paddocks at the moment. As a child when the mushrooms poked their heads up after the Autumn rain we would all be out scouring the paddocks. It was a family affair that took us far and wide and gave us lots of exercise. You had to be quick to catch the little button ones before they opened properly. Mostly our buckets were filled with bigger mushrooms. We learnt to look for the beautiful pinky-brown colour underneath and the nice white tops. In all the years of mushrooming we never picked a poisonous one. We learnt to spot a yellow stainer from ten paces, we learnt how they should look and how they should smell, where they grew best and which ones to avoid.

Today I see mushrooms in paddocks everywhere but no one seems to be picking them! Has everyone forgotten how a fresh mushroom smells or how good they taste sautéed in a little butter with some pepper and salt to taste? I fear the art of mushrooming is a dying one. What a terrible waste!

The Face of Dunolly Hairdressing

Broadway has had a new hairdresser for the last few months so by now many people in and around Dunolly will have met Stephanie and experienced her expertise in hair cutting and styling. Stephanie has transformed the salon with new fittings and attractive décor sporting a smart new bookings desk and furniture.

Stephanie is a Maryborough girl and trained in Bendigo where she now lives with her partner. Before taking over the business in Dunolly Stephanie worked as a hairdresser in Bacchus Marsh. She tells me that she particularly enjoys cutting, colouring and styling for both sexes. Her rates are very reasonable and she opens Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Next Thursday Stephanie will be welcoming a new assistant, Crystal who will run the salon every Thursday. Crystal has 16 years experience in hairdressing. Stephanie is very happy to have found Dunolly and she is an open, friendly person who has already made a number of friends in town.

Our May meeting was held at the SES on Wednesday, 4 May .We were given a report on the special meeting held in Maryborough last month to sort out problems in the group. We now have a new Group President, Rachel Mitchell from the Maryborough Branch, we offer her our best wishes and support in her new role. The branch is still the Hostess Branch for the Group International Day, on a date yet to be decided. After the meeting and lunch, six members went to Bendigo on our much delayed visit to the Marilyn Monroe Exhibition. It was a pleasure to be able to wander through the exhibition at our leisure without the crush of previous events. She was a very interesting woman, not just the light weight she was thought to be. The contrast between the glamorous gowns of her films and the classic style of her personal clothes was most noticeable. We then strolled to the huge statue and took photos; a cup of coffee was most welcome before our trip home.

The next meeting is on 1June. There will be a craft lesson on making copper brooches at 10am.

The competitions are a flower and something precious. BYO Lunch.

Curated by local international award-winning textile artist, Jenny Bacon, Golden Textures is an acquisitive art quilt prize. The prize-winning quilt becomes part of the Central Goldfields Art Gallery permanent collection. The artists are selected from their Expressions of Interest, with artists from all over Australia represented.

Exhibition curator Jenny Bacon was invited to travel the Gallery's 2015 Golden Textures exhibition to two prestigious international exhibitions. The exhibition visits Birmingham, England and later to Beaujolais, France.

Birmingham Festival of Quilts is the largest show of its type in Europe attracting 60,000 visitors.

Beaujolais International Textile Art Exhibition draws 24,000 visitors over four days. The Golden Textures quilts hung alongside works from Belgium, Mexico, Russia, Taiwan and America among others.

Jenny Bacon reported that international experts commented on the 'excellent quality of the Golden Textures quilts, the high level of technical skill and uniquely Australian iconography.'

Jenny also noted that those visitors to the exhibition who had been to Australia commented that it reminded them of the distinctive Australian landscape and bright, natural light. And for those who had never visited Australia, enquired about Maryborough, for a potential of visit to the next Golden Textures exhibition.

Scamwatch Radar Alert - Australians lose over $229 million to scams in 2015

The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission's Targeting Scams Report reveals that $85 million was reported lost to the ACCC's Scamwatch last year, with 105,200 scam complaints. In 2014, the ACCC received 91,600 scam complaints, with almost $82 million reported lost.

"This Fraud Week, the ACCC is urging the community to Wise Up to Scams' following a $3 million increase in scam losses reported to the ACCC and a 15 per cent increase in complaints. In particular, we are encouraging older Australians to wise up and watch out for scams that target them so they don't have their hard earned savings stolen," ACCC Deputy Chair Delia Rickard said.

For the first time, the ACCC has also reviewed data from other jurisdictions that receive reports or detect scams to get a clearer picture of the significance of losses caused by scam activity in Australia. After removing those scams reported to the ACCC, reports to the Australian Cybercrime Online Reporting Network (ACORN) revealed losses of over $127 million in 2015, from 25,600 complaints.

Various scam disruption programs also detect Australians sending funds to high risk jurisdictions and a combined estimate of losses to this unreported scam activity is $17.1 million.

"If you add Scamwatch and ACORN data with losses detected through scam disruption work, total scam losses exceeded $229 million last year. We know that in reality the actual total is higher still as many people never report that they've been scammed," Ms Rickard said.

"The ACCC's report reveals that investment scams and dating and romance scams resulted in the largest financial losses. There are many other scams which affect older members of the community but these two scams account for half of the money reported lost by over 55's in 2015."

In 2015, Scamwatch reports for fraudulent investment schemes across all age groups doubled to over $24 million, with 1,262 complaints. If you add in the investment scams reported to ACORN the total amount reported comes to over $41 million. Of those reported to Scamwatch, almost $6.3 million was lost to victims over 55, with 213 complaints from this age group.

These scams pose a significant risk for Australians looking for investment opportunities, especially those looking to grow their retirement funds.

Visit ACORN at http://www.acorn.gov.au/.

Top tips Dating & romance scams:

- Run a Google Image search to check the authenticity of any photos provided scammers often use fake photos they've found online
- Don't send money or your personal details to someone you meet online no matter how convincing their story is.
- Never share intimate photos or videos with someone you meet online - they could later use it to blackmail you.
 Investment scams:
- Don't let anyone pressure you into making decisions about your money or investments
- Only invest your money with a managed fund or other investment that is licensed by ASIC and check ASIC's MoneySmart website.

Do not send you money overseas for an investment offer that has come out of the blue – no matter how attractive or professional it appears.

"Investment scams come in many guises including business ventures, superannuation schemes, managed funds and the sale or purchase of shares or property. Scammers dress up 'opportunities' with professional looking brochures and websites to mask their fraudulent operations and trick unsuspecting Australians. Before parting with your money, do your own research on the investment company and check they have a Australian Financial Services Licence on ASIC's MoneySmart website. Don't let anyone pressure you into making decisions about your money or investments," Ms Rickard said.

In 2015, Scamwatch reports for dating and romance scams decreased slightly but were still significant with just under $23 million in reported losses from 2,620 complaints. Of this $5.6 million was lost to victims over 55, with 464 complaints from this age group. ACORN reports for romance scams totals $15 million. When you add these losses to those from the disruption work ($17m), this brings the total losses for relationship scams to over $54 million.

"Dating and romance scams take advantage of people looking for romantic partners, often via dating websites, apps or social media. Scammers spend months and even years establishing a relationship with their victims before making up a reason they need to 'borrow' money, such as medical emergencies or travel expenses. Never send money to someone you have met online — chances are you will be left with a broken heart and an empty bank account. Cease contact with anyone that asks for money, no matter how you feel about them," Ms Rickard said.

The ACCC is continuing to alert potential victims to dating scams through our Scam Disruption Project.

Are you interested in accessing occasional child care?

Being the primary carer of pre-school age children can be a juggle at times, particularly when you need to take time out for work, an appointment or simply to have a break.

This is a message Council has received from parents and is now able to address after receiving funding to run occasional care programmes through Loddon Shire's five kindergartens.

It's exciting to be in a position where we are able to offer occasional care to parents on a casual needs basis, without tying the family into a regular weekly commitment. However, we need to ensure we have the numbers and ongoing interest to get this opportunity off the ground.

To this end, in recent weeks Council's early years team has been conducting information sessions at kindergartens across the Shire and chatting to families at the kinder gate, in a bid to promote the new programme.

While we understand it may be difficult for carers to fully anticipate their occasional care needs and we already have the government funding to provide the service, it's vital we receive expressions of interest to determine the service delivery need.

Occasional care is available for families with three to five year old children and six year-olds with an exemption from school if they turn six in the year care is provided.

The Commonwealth and state government program is also a surprisingly affordable option for the majority of families.

To register your interest in accessing occasional care, or for further information, contact our Early Years Coordinator Alycia O'Sullivan by phoning 5437 7909 or emailing earlyyears@loddon.vic.gov.au by Friday 27 May.

Free mental health first aid courses

First Aid can, and does, save lives.

You can never have too many people with Certificate II in First Aid in a workplace, a community group or the home. Our community is fortunate to have a significant number of "first aiders" among its ranks but I'm not sure we could say the same about mental health first aiders.

We currently have a fantastic opportunity to address this imbalance with a number of free mental health first aid courses being conducted across the Shire.

While the funding for these courses is being provided through the Drought Support Fund, the training is open to all adults within the Shire, regardless of whether they have a direct link to the land.

The course focuses on developing the skills to give initial help to adults experiencing mental health problems in a mental health crisis situation or in the early stages of a mental health illness.

My fellow Councillor Colleen Condliffe, who is also a member of the Loddon Healthy Minds Committee, was among those to participate in a two day course which wound up in Wedderburn on Sunday.

Colleen undertook the course alongside interested community members from towns including Charlton, Wedderburn and Dingee.

The participants were from a range of different backgrounds and ages, with the youngest graduate being 18 and some being well into their 50s.

A second Mental Health First Aid course, to be held over several evenings at The Boort Resource and Information Centre, kicked off on Monday 16 May.

We hope to support further mental health first aid courses, including those which focus on the wellbeing of our young people, later in the year.

To find out more visit the Mental Health First Aid Australia website at www.mhfa.com.au or log onto www.loddonhealthyminds.com.au.

Rug up and meander around a market

Welcome recent rain accompanied by cool, crisp mornings and evenings have signalled that winter weather isn't far away.

But don't let that stop you from rugging up and heading out with the family on the weekend.

We have some fabulous country markets in the Shire where you can stock up with vegies to make those winter soups and casseroles, while fossicking through a host of craft and bric-a-brac stalls before enjoying a bite of lunch. Make a point of marking on the calendar the Wedderburn Farmers Market which takes place on Sunday 29 May and the Pyramid Hill Lions Market and Lions Bridgewater Country Market which are scheduled for Saturday 11 June.

Meet up with friends, and while you out and about, if your travels take you through Inglewood, consider popping into The Blue Eucy Museum which is enjoying extended opening hours.

The museum, which celebrates Inglewood's unique links with the eucalyptus oil industry, is now open Thursday to Monday from 10am to 4pm.

Prospective volunteers interested in assisting at The Blue Eucy Museum, and in doing so helping to raise the town's tourism profile, are encouraged to contact our Tourism and Marketing Officer Robyn Vella on 0428 448 390.

The bridge at Eddington and the approaches each side were badly damaged in the flood of August 1863. It was found that the original contractor had only sunk the piles a short distance into the mud. The mud was washed away and some piles were left in mid-air hanging from the bridge. All heavy traffic had to divert away from the town. A replacement bridge was not started until June the following year and completed in August.

On the right is the Bridge Inn. William & Sarah Mayo ran a general store and newsagency in Eddington from 1862. In 1864 they built a wooden building alongside their store and obtained a beer licence for it. The photo shows decking out front of the hotel but the verandah not yet added. In 1865 it was upgraded to a publican's licence and the hotel named the Bridge Inn. In the early 1870s this building was replaced by the brick building that still stands on the site in Eddington. Robert Johnson Goulden became the licensee about 1871. It was operated by him and later his son until the hotel closed in 1909.

AMERICAN SILVER DOLLAR

This coin was found in a coat pocket at an Op Shop. It is not what it seems. It is a forgery. The coin is assumed to have been mass produced somewhere in South East Asia in the 1960s. It was sold to the unsuspecting troops in Vietnam

TRACING ANCESTORS ON THE GOLDFIELDS -Part 2 Inquests

The Public Record Office Victoria has made available most of their inquest records. They are online at PROV search within a series – VPRS 24. At this stage it is search by number only not name. At the Dunolly Museum we have downloaded many of the district inquests. For many years an index has been available for Victorian inquests. This has the name of the deceased, year, number and district. Researchers have often mistaken district for place and have been misled. Of over 100 inquests at Dunolly in the 1850s only ½ were actually in the town, others were as far away as Wedderburn.

Sometimes the Maryborough coroner was called to Dunolly so there are also Dunolly inquests that are listed in the index as Maryborough.

We have now been creating a database of the local inquests including the names of people mentioned. These are often witnesses or jurors. Miners feature prominently in these records making personal statements like "I am a digger living at Moliagul. The deceased was my mate, I have known him four years, and he has a wife and children in Adelaide. We were travelling from Bullock Creek to the new rush when..."

Another feature of the witnesses is the testimony of women. Women are missed out in so many other records but in these they make many personal statements about their living conditions and the people they mixed with. One lapse of correct procedure noted in a few local inquests was a woman giving evidence whilst her own husband sat on the jury.

Inquests were usually held at the closest hotel. A captive assembly of people for a couple of hours can be good for business. What could be seen as another common lapse in procedure is the publican serving on the jury. One can imagine him serving beers and not paying attention to a vital piece of evidence.

The jury consisted of twelve good men from the locality. Many of these men may only have been in the area a short time before following the miners to the next rush. This might be the only record of them having been at that place. In one inquest held at Burnt Creek, after most of the miners had left for a new rush, the coroner made the following note "in consequence of the thinly populated locality no more than ten jurors could be procured although a mounted trooper was occupied for more than two hours in quest of a full jury and two out of the ten had to be discharged for being drunk."

All witnesses and jurors signed the inquest papers. Some just with a X. I saw on the TV series 'Who do you think you are?' a statement that if a person signed their name they were literate and could read and write. This is not true. Some could read and write, some just read and some neither. Some just learnt to sign their name. This is obvious amongst the inquests by simple spelling mistakes in their own names like Luis, Tomas or Wiliam.

I should like to point out that the Victorian Inquests database 1840-1985 only includes inquests held by PROV at VPRS 24. Some inquests were lost or never sent to Melbourne. The PROV also has inquests not stored at VPRS 24. These can be accessed on the internet through Index to third parties in inquests.

The database of local people mentioned in inquests is at the Dunolly Museum and has over 4,000 entries.

Specialist STEM teachers will inspire the next generation in Maryborough

The Labor Member for Western Victoria, Jaala Pulford, announced a big boost to STEM teaching in Maryborough with the news that Maryborough Education Centre is one of 30 schools which will see two teachers specially trained to inspire students in science, technology, engineering and maths.

60 teachers across the state will receive specialist training so they can lead, encourage and mentor other teachers in high impact STEM (science, technology, engineering and maths) education for Years 7 and 8.

The Secondary STEM Catalysts program will contribute to meeting the Education State targets, which include 25% more Year 9 students reach the highest level of achievement in maths and 33% more 15 year olds reach the highest levels of achievement in science.

Ms Pulford said the program is part of a $30 million Education State initiative to boost science and maths teaching for students who need it most.

"These specially trained teachers will spark a love of STEM subjects which are vital to our State's future. They are part of a $30 million package that will change the way schools and students look at these subjects," Ms Pulford said.

"We are making Victoria the Education State, and part of that is making sure we equip our young people with the skills they need, and we know that they include science, technology, engineering and maths," she said.

The funding will also provide five-day professional learning program for 100 existing Primary Mathematics and Science Specialists in their alternate discipline – existing mathematics specialists will be trained in science teaching and vice-versa.

It will also provide 200 teachers at 100 disadvantaged schools with support to become math and science specialists, including 20 days of specialist professional development a year for two staff.

On top of this funding the 2016-17 State Budget also provides $116 million to build 10 new tech schools across Victoria.

Laucke Flour Australian Owned and Grown

The day old Friedrich Laucke's mill steam boiler blew up was the day he could have thrown up his hands and given it all away. Instead, he climbed on the rubble, lit a cigar and declared he would rebuild. Friedrich had experienced a less than ideal start to his new life in Australia.

An immigrant from Germany in 1895, he was "out to see the world", but ran out of money in Adelaide and returned to his trade as a miller, only to contract rheumatic fever.

He resigned, vowing to "seek work, how and when he could, on his own account".

In 1899, Friedrich gained control of the Greenock flour mill in South Australia's Barossa Valley and Laucke Flour Mills – the last of Australia's family-owned and operated independent millers – was born.

He had his setbacks, such as when a boiler exploded for the third time, but responded by importing a gas engine from England which burned charcoal and ran faultlessly for 48 years.

Today, the business is managed by the third and fourth generations of the Laucke family, recognised internationally for their high-quality products for the food industry and home bakers, with a special focus on artisan and organic flours and mixes. In 2000, the company bought the former "Water Wheel" flour mill at Bridgewater. It was the only functional water-driven mill in the southern hemisphere and boasted a rich history, being continuously developed on the one site for almost 130 years.

The original mill opened in 1874, powered by the Loddon River, and by 1970 had a silo storage capacity of 500,000 bushels (more than 13,600 tonnes). In 2014, the old Water Wheel mill was shut down, replaced by an all-new $20 million facility, packed wall-to-wall with the latest technology.

Milling operations manager Roger Laubsch said it took more than three years to create the new plant.

"The mill now works 24 hours a day, five days a week, with 65-70 staff and contributes 60-70 per cent of Laucke's overall output, focusing on specialty markets," Mr Laubsch said. "Our supply of grains is predominantly Victorian with more than 40 contracted growers providing 45,000 tonnes a year. "However, we do go further afield – into New South Wales and Queensland – for some specialty grains such as organic. "We have about 35 specialty lines at the moment, but the number of products is even bigger still.

"Our products are selling around the country, both in the retail market through the major supermarkets and wholesale to manufacturing companies across Australia.

"Laucke exports significant tonnage to overseas countries in an ever-growing market, focusing on value-added products to new and strategic customers across the globe. The gluten-free and healthy options sector of our business is obviously growing and now comprises 15-20 per cent of what we do. In Loddon Shire, the Bridgewater Bakehouse is a proud customer of Laucke's and there are plenty of others close by in Bendigo."

Laucke sells bread mixes in sourdough rye, white, German grain, wholemeal, multigrain and soy and linseed, specialties such as kangaroo flour and Special White and mixes such as ciabatta, scones, pizza and focaccia, sweet breads and gluten-free.

More than a century ago, Friedrich Laucke gained Royal approval to associate the symbols of Australia into the branding of his flour bags.

The same kangaroo, emu and crown still appear today on the company's product packaging.

Friedrich would have liked that.

Two local schools get in tune with new music equipment

The Labor Member for Western Victoria, Jaala Pulford, announced that Maryborough Education Centre and Timor Primary School will each receive funding to purchase new musical equipment.

Ms Pulford said grants of up to $5,000 have been awarded to 43 Victorian schools under Round One of the Musical Instrument Grants program.

"I'm really pleased that Maryborough Education Centre and Timor Primary School will receive $5,000 each towards new musical equipment," Ms Pulford said.

Across Victoria, instruments can now be purchased with the grants. These instruments include 24 pianos and keyboards, 34 guitars, 14 drum kits, 13 ukuleles, 8 amplifiers, 7 xylophones, 6 glockenspiels and a range of classical instruments including two flutes, a violin, a cello, a trumpet and a trombone.

They will also be used to buy African, Koorie, and Tibetan instruments as well as up-to-date electronic music equipment including 8 amplifiers, 3 PA systems, 5 mixers, speakers, iPads and computer software.

"The grants are part of the Andrews Labor Government's $2 million Music in Schools election commitment, which will also provide professional training for hundreds of Victorian teachers so that schools without strong, school wide programs can establish quality music programs," Ms Pulford said.

The second round of grants will be available in 2017.

Ms Pulford said research shows that music study is good for brain development as well improving reasoning ability, communication skills and attention levels.

"This program contributes toward meeting the Education State target of more students reaching the highest levels of achievements in the arts," she said.

"I hope students at Maryborough Education Centre and Timor Primary School have fun making music with these new instruments and that some of them go on to become part of our State's bright, creative future," Ms Pulford said.

There's A Wallaby In The Milk!

Entrant in The Welcome Record Animal Story Competition By Brenda Cheers

Hubby arrived home from work one cold April morning mid 1985 announcing he had a present for me. What could it be I thought. Flowers or chocolates and why hasn't he brought it in himself? Why do I have to go to the van and get it? Reaching onto the floor of the van and picking up a rather greasy piece of rag, Garry presented me with my 'present' which turned out to be a naked, pathetically small and icy cold black wallaby. Within minutes this 300gm cold, pink baby had taken over ownership of Garry's one and only very thick, very expensive, pure wool jumper as well as his place in our bed.

From the moment Rupert arrived he took control of my life. Incredibly hard to keep warm, Garry spent three weeks in the spare bed whilst every night I sweated with the electric blanket turned to high. Feeding every 4 hours day and night with monotonous regularity pushed all other chores well into the background. Rupert was my only concern. He grew slowly from a totally helpless smooth skinned 'pinkie' to a beautiful soft grey furred wallaby that followed me ceaselessly around the house and more than once nearly came to grief as he was kicked or stepped on.

On his journey to the beautiful furred animal he became Rupert mounted and overcame a number of obstacles falling more than two feet from his pouch near the fire during an icy, frosty night and managing on his very long and still unsteady legs to find the coldest place in the house to hide until I got up to give him his 2am feed and heard his tiny cries for help. That night it took three hours to get warmth back into his naked body even with the electric blanket on high and him cuddled tightly into my body.

The night he took a dive into a bucket of cold milk – in those days we had a house cow - how he was able to get out of that I'll never know but there I was at 2am giving him a warm soapy bath while Garry mopped up milky footprints.

A hunger strike for three days had me in a whirl, all other activities ceased as I slowly and gently dripped formula into his mouth hour after hour and relentlessly plagued the wonderful vet for answers. He must have spent almost as much time as me worrying. Again Rupert survived.

I had applied for and been granted a temporary permit to raise Rupert and release him from our property. After only a few weeks, our local fisheries and wildlife officer asked if Garry and I would open a wildlife shelter as there was nowhere in our local area where wildlife needing care could be helped. After some thought we agreed. Within days we also had in residence two tawny frogmouths, another wallaby and an eastern grey kangaroo.

On the day Rupert arrived Garry told how he had seen the body of the mother in the middle of the road and stopped to move it, as he did he saw a tiny movement and checked the pouch, gently removing the cold baby. He said he was about to put it down when it opened its eyes and looked straight at him, this was the only time his eyes opened for a week or so after arrival.

As the years passed and more and more wildlife arrived I began to believe that Rupert had been specially sent to me. I believe that I was chosen to follow the path Rupert led me down. He and the many other wallabies, kangaroos, possums, etc that have found their way to our home have taught me many things, among them patience and tolerance and a passionate love for our precious and unique wildlife that I cannot put into words. I have found peace, happiness and contentment and a bounty of friends I would never have known had Rupert not arrived. All these things and more I owe to that icy cold 300gm pink wallaby that arrived home as a 'present'. A world of chocolates and flowers could never give what Rupert and the others have.

Please Note - It is illegal to keep sick, injured or orphaned wildlife found. Having any type of wildlife keeping licence does not qualify anyone to take in or care for these creatures, they must be taken to a vet or authorised wildlife shelter. Heavy penalties apply if caught and prosecuted.

VICKY'S VIEW

Pine Lea

In 1867 the Pine Lea property at Eddington was owned by William Small and Charles Cowan. By 1897 it was registered to Catherine and George Small. Two years later, in 1899, William David Davies bought the property. As well as land there was a mostly weatherboard house built about 1890, a machinery shed, underground dairy (cellar) and stabling for two teams of horses, probably sixteen in all. There was also a windmill and bore and an avenue of poplars. A new kitchen was built in 1934 and a veranda added after the second world war. Several members of the Davies clan, from different generations, suffered broken bones as a result of falls from the trees which gave the property its name. In 1944 William's son Allen took over the farm and his son Ken followed him in due course. The farm is currently owned by a fourth generation of the Davies family.

It is many years now since Pine Lea has been lived in, and most of the trees have died. But it is still possible to trace the line of the poplar avenue, and the house must have looked very welcoming sitting at the top surrounded by green trees. Thanks to Peter, Norm, Val, Lyn, Evelyn, Phillip, Isobel and Margaret for their input.

Poss

Dad found a dead mother possum and when he went to take her away he found the little baby possum in her pouch. Of course we called it Poss. It was very tiny but it had all its hair so Dad thought it could be looked after. Mum taught me how to feed Poss with milk from an eye dropper. At first we had to give him lots of little drinks but later he learnt to drink from a bowl. Later still we put bread in his milk. He did look funny with his little nose all wet with milk.

As he grew bigger he ate carrots, apples and other fruit and vegetables. However he did like bread and butter with apricot jam but it made him all sticky and he had to lick himself clean.

Possums like to play at night when we are asleep and when we are awake they want to sleep. It is hard to play with them. In the daytime he would sit on my foot and hold onto my leg when I was playing with my sister and brothers. I could run around and he would never fall off. Mum made a special bag for him with a special opening like his mother's pouch. We hung it on the door handle in the kitchen.

Possums don't really make good pets but we had a lot of fun for the short time we had Poss.

When you were in bed you would hear him pitter patter around the house and sometimes he would climb on my bed and pull my hair. He was a real sticky beak and would look in everything around the house. We couldn't leave any food around as he would try it to see if it was good to eat.

As he grew bigger he started to make loud possum noises in the house and Dad said he had to be put outside in a cage. I didn't want him to go outside but he started to break things inside. Mum said that we really couldn't keep Poss in a cage all the time and we should let him go. Dad said "not around the house," as he might climb on the roof and make more noises in the night when we were trying to sleep. A possum on the roof of a house makes very loud noises. It sounds as if it is wearing big boots.

So one day we drove a long way away and let Poss go in the bush. I cried and cried. I hoped he would find his way back home to me, but he never did.

Lowering speed limits will not fix broken roads

Ripon MP Louise Staley has slammed the Andrews Labor Government for failing to fund rural roads and instead proposing the lowering of speed limits.

Instead of funding the repair of local roads in Ripon the Andrews Labor Government has announced it will spend money putting up lower speed limit signs.

The move followed the Labor Government slashing regional road funding when it axed the former State Government's highly successful Country Roads and Bridges Program.

Ms. Staley said until the State Government faced up to the reality of the poorly maintained broken roads, then local lives would continue to be at risk.

"Creating lower speed limits will not country fix roads and bridges in need of repair, Daniel Andrews needs to restore this vital funding and finally fix country roads," Ms. Staley Said.

If a road is deemed broken and unsafe, then it needs to be urgently fixed, having cars continuing to drive on unsafe roads will put local lives at risk.

"Country Victorians need roads that are safe and reliable, creating lower speed limits will choke country roads further; increasing travel times and slowing down productivity."

Communicating with symbols

This term the senior unit is currently investigating Australia as a Nation and both the 3/4 and the 5/6 units are beginning by regarding Indigenous Australia and life before European Exploration. On Tuesday afternoon the whole unit got together to communicate by drawing symbols that depict daily early Indigenous life. This was a great chance for the students to use their creativity and skills at crushing chalk and paint rocks to create their message. All students then orally conveyed their message back to their classes, the same way Indigenous peoples did and still do.

Round 5 Match Report – Reserves and Seniors Dunolly Vs Newstead

We would firstly like to thank our fantastic Sponsors who have helped us make this Footy Club what it is. A big thankyou to Maryborough Golf Club, Freemantle Stock Feeds & quality products, Maldon & District Community Bank Bendigo and MC Labour.

Reserves

Coming off a good win last week we were expecting to go close to another win this week. It was not the case, we started off well kicking the first two goals then fell into the trap of thinking it will all just happen. Newstead got on top and got 4 goals clear by half time, unfortunately we couldn't get back into the game. Just shows you need to stay consistent for all four quarters. Best on went to Cook, Michael, Lane, James, Mitch and Baker.

Seniors

Sponsors day was great for Dunolly Seniors to show off its talent with two sides hitting the field evenly matched. At three quarter time we were down by 19 points, coach Adam Pollock asked his troops for a special effort and for his leaders to step it up facing adversity. The players responded with an outstanding effort to have a 7 goal to 2 final term to seal victory. The win was a memorial day for the club to perform in that way for our sponsors and supporters. It was a great team effort with Chris Stone booting 7, Mick Campbell ever reliable outstanding in the back line and our two Captains Matt Gibbs and Justin Laird leading the way with Joey Thompson, Toby Johnston and Luke Bettiol playing great football. It's fantastic to see our local boys leading the way and steering the club in the right direction 'onward and upwards'. Razza Dazza!! Go Dunolly

Clear winners from our weekly bowls competition this week. Sam Whitehead's Team won all their games. Congratulations Sam, you may be our oldest member, but you are certainly up there with the rest of us. President Bill Best played well in Sam's winning team and this year's newcomer to Bealiba, Geraldine Delgado was also in the winning team for the second week in succession. Players please note we require a team for Sunday 19 June for a competition at St Arnaud.

Round 5 – Dunolly Vs Newstead Under 13's

Great effort on Saturday from our under 13 kids. We tried hard but were beaten to the ball by Newstead. Awesome effort from Millie and Sam intercepting passes. We just didn't capitalise on it. Well done to Newstead for being on the ball all game.

Under 15's

It was a slow start by both teams. It was a tight contest all day. Dunolly had a few lapses of concentration in which Newstead capitalised on. It was a good effort by the girls however Newstead proved too tall and strong on the day beating us 25-12. Nicki was best on with good strong drives in attack and encouragement went to Lucy for showing her versatility coming from attack into defence.

A Grade

After a fairly even first quarter trailing by 2 goals, the second quarter we were out scored by taller opponents 3 goals to 12. The last quarter was even 8 goals each, unfortunately the girls are not getting rewarded for their efforts. We just need to keep at it and rewards will come. Best players Lou Carey and Peta Dodson.

B Grade

The girls started nice and steady being down 2 goals at quarter time. We had a great second quarter out scoring opposition 11 to 5. Consolidating their lead in the third quarter to have a 5 goal lead going in to last quarter. Although a little bit scrappy in the last quarter the girls hung on to win by two. Best players in a great team effort were Maddi Hall and Brooke Deason.

C Grade

C grade played a fantastic game this week and came home with our first win. It was a great game by all with Mel Fremantle taking our best on for the day with her incredible shooting. Well done girls!!

The Dunolly Social Cyclist's ride on Sunday 15 May was one 'out of the box'. The weather gods delivered and a small group met as usual to follow an uphill ride to the Mount Hooghly area, where we were shown the original Mount Hooghly Post Office which now stands on private land.

The old stone post office still has the side window, where mail was dispensed to the locals. It was once a tumbling ruin but has now been beautifully rebuilt and reroofed by the current land owners.

A walk up the hill from the Post Office bought magnificent views, old stone house ruins, amazing tree roots, still with large boulders attached and finally, a granite quarry.

The quarry was used to supply granite for the construction of the Timor Arch and the notches where wooden dowels were placed were clearly visible. It was explained that large wooden dowels were placed in holes drilled into the stone. The dowels were then wet and as they expanded the rock cracked. Amazing technology!

Needless to say a couple of hours passed in a flash and we still hadn't been to the old Costello winery site! We are saving that for another visit. The Post Office and quarry are all on private property so thanks must go to Glen and Trish for allowing us to visit these interesting historic remains and explaining the history of the area.

The rebuilt Mount Hooghly Post Office

History of Mount Hooghly School

There are few details of the history of the Mount Hooghly Post Office. An application for the building of a Post Office is mentioned in a notice in The Age newspaper in 1884 and there is an advertisement for a contractor to tender for the delivery of mail from the Dunolly PO to Mount Hooghly three times a week in 1917.

What is clear is that Mount Hooghly was once a small but thriving community. Not only was there a Post Office but the community had sufficient population to staff and populate a school.

In 1877 the local District Inspector of the Victorian Education Department received an application for a school to be built at Mount Hooghly. He recommended that a State School be established. Contractors erected, for £350, a 24ft x 16ft wooden school room with two attached dwelling rooms and the school opened in November 1879. It had a chequered history with a brief closure in 1893 and then from May 1897 until 1901 the school operated half time with a teacher shared with Natte Yallock East. It then operated part time with Dunluce school, in 1926, but closed in February1927.

That was not the end of education at Mount Hooghly however. In 1933 a building was moved, by parents, from Dunluce to a more central site in the Parish of Archdale. This new school was called Mount Hooghly, number 2211. The Mount Hooghly residence was also moved to this new site and the school operated with only five children attending, until it was closed in 1950.
