EXCITING NEW BUSINESS OPENS ON BROADWAY

The Dunolly Ukulele Group entertaining customers

Last Friday, business owners and members of the community were treated to a lavish spread to celebrate the opening of Dunolly Nik Naks & Gallery, in the former Cockatoo Cafe building on Broadway.

The very hospitable owners, Mal and Thea, had generously invited the community to share their pleasure in launching their new business through their advertisement in The Welcome Record.

During their short time in Dunolly, they have managed to transform the old building, which had most recently housed the pharmacy, back to much of its former glory from the Cockatoo Cafe Days.

Home to a veritable feast of wares, from Thea's own artworks to jewellery, to pottery and glass, both older and modern, as well as other quality giftware, the gallery sparkles from Thea's creative touch.

Mal and Thea have wasted no time in making many friends and becoming part of the community. We were able to witness this first hand, as Mal joined the Dunolly Ukulele Group in playing several numbers to entertain the guests.

We all welcome Mal and Thea and wish them every success in their new business!

It is Seniors' Week. Yippee!!

I worked it out this week that our ute is 40 years old and still going strong. Wonder how many of the 2018 utes will still be around in 40 year's time.

I picked up a weighted shower curtain from the Shire the other day, and the polite man who served me asked if I'd like someone to come out and hang it for me.

I may be (very) mature middle aged – but!!

Don't forget the line-up of the planets starting on the 12th of this month - just hope the skies are clear.

I was looking at the fish tank in the lounge room at the nursing home the other day, when I noticed one that didn't look too well. It was yellow and sort of lying on the bottom of the tank not doing much at all. When I checked it the next day I realised it is one of those "hoover" fish that help keep the water clean, and was perfectly well.

Daylight saving has disrupted my morning rituals. I have been having my breakfast out on the back verandah in the sun for the last few days. Since Sunday, the sun is lower in the sky at the "new" time and I have had to shift my chair out further to catch it.

The Rambles are sorry to see Quinn leaving. We wish her every happiness and success for the future.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Through the pages of your newspaper I would like to tell readers about exciting plans to allow every kid in Western Victoria the chance to start kindergarten a year earlier.

A re-elected Labor Government will invest almost $5 billion over the next decade to deliver a full 15 hours of three-year-old kinder, helping make sure local kids are ready for school and set for life.

This will be the largest social, economic and educational reform ever undertaken in early childhood learning and is great news for families here in Western Victoria.

Right now, many families are forced to scrimp and save to cover the costs of three-year-old kinder – around $5000 a year for 15 hours.

But too many kids are missing out, with new research showing nearly one in five families do not have their child enrolled in early learning because of the cost.

Under Labor's plan, around a quarter of families in Western Victoria will pay nothing at all, and for families with a higher income, the Labor Government will cover 65 per cent of their child's kindergarten costs.

This represents a saving of at least $3500 for families whose children attend a standalone kinder.

Those with kids who go to long-day-care will also benefit, with these centres given funding to employ teachers in their three-year-old rooms.

All evidence shows that early education can shape a child's entire future and an extra year of kinder will make the world of difference to local kids and their families.

Travels with Cynthia

After our Wimbledon adventure we three girls moved to a flat in Hyde Park Gate in London, quite close to Hyde Park. It is time to introduce my two friends by name. Mary and Anne Marie were from Sydney and had been to school together and, as it happened, had attended one of the sister schools run by the same order of French nuns where I had been schooled. We met at the fun table on the ship going over and from then on teamed up as a threesome.

While we were flat-hunting, the girls stayed with Anne Marie's brother who had moved to London and married there, and I found a bed sitter in Baker Street, home of the fictitious Sherlock Holmes, but that didn't stop tourists knocking on the door looking for 221B, which doesn't exist. My tiny room had just enough space for a bed jammed under a sloping roof, cupboard and small table and chair. When it was cold I opened the door of the toaster and sat in front of it.

When we found our flat it was quite smart and even had a concierge downstairs. We were able to afford it because we had a fourth person. Jill was a first-year out doctor and a friend of Anne Marie's brother, and she was a nightmare. I shared the second bedroom with her and thank heavens she spent more nights at the hospital than at home. She found the flat so it was in her name and we paid her our rent. Jill was a heavy smoker (doctors used to smoke back then) and she liked to keep the bedroom window shut, even though she smoked in bed while reading her notes. I would sneak over and open the window when I heard the heavy breathing, but in no time at all I would hear the window bang shut.

One time we had a visit from one of my Australian friends who had recently arrived. We did so much catching up that she missed the last tube. Since Jill was supposed to be sleeping at the hospital that night, we gave Jill's bed to my friend. Horror of horrors, however, we were woken up after midnight to find a furious Jill demanding to know who was in her bed. At least it wasn't a bloke. In the morning Jill had gone leaving a note of eviction on the table for the three of us. It took a lot of sweet-talking to convince Jill not to turn us out in the snow.

During our stay in that flat we were all working through agencies as temporary fill-ins for people on leave. I was in the translation news department at the BBC, hence had both day and night shifts. Shortly after our arrival at Hyde Park Gate, Anne Marie turned on her bedside lamp one night to discover horrid little insects on her bed. We discovered that they were bed bugs and we all freaked out when examining the other beds. It turned out that the previous tenants had been staying in Egypt prior to coming to London and it was assumed the bugs had come in their luggage. Trunks and suitcases were supposed to be stored in the basement, but apparently theirs had been left in the bedrooms. The management arranged for fumigation and put us up in a nearby hotel overnight. Then, of all things, I received a phone call from my Aunt Jean to say she had arrived in England and would be coming to London to see me the following day. There was no way I could tell her the reason why we had to vacate the flat as she would inform my mother, so I told her I had to work overtime for two days and then we would catch up. That worked well, but then when we were back in the flat, I was on night shift and after collapsing into bed at about 7am, my aunt would come pounding on the door at 9am. "Come on, get up, we have all London to see." I would beg for a bit more sleep and she would say "Nonsense, you young things can manage without much sleep". So I would prop open my tired eyelids and sally forth to show off London to my dear Aunt Jean.

Gibble Gabble Gobble

Rachel has done it again! At Buckley's of Dunolly last Saturday, the Melba Room was set-up for the Chamber Opera Gibble, Gabble, Gobble - a story of four school friends meeting again after 40 years at their school reunion.

The four performers are: Rachel as Tatiana aka Tizzy, soprano; Janet Brown as Theresa aka Tess, mezzo soprano; John Clancy as Sam, baritone and David Stephensen as Carlo, tenor. Alice Carpenter played the young prefect welcoming past students to the reunion, and David Steele was the piano accompanist. The libretto is by Chester Eagle and the score by Christopher J Wilson.

The story is set in the assembly hall of the fictional Grantham Grange Grammar where guests imbibe on cocktails while waiting for the dinner gong to sound. The four singled each other out; they were inseparable friends during school, but had lost touch as each one went about their own lives.

Hesitantly at first, dwelling on past reminiscences and the obligatory "do you remember", or "whatever happened to..." the four finally open up to share some deeply personal experiences, issues which will ring a bell with many.

I was reminded of my own school reunion. The stories were different, but the way in which the four portrayed them would resonate with most people - hesitancy, poignancy, anger, futility, remorse, even shame. All emotions that we experience in life and, more often than not, keep secret. And here with friends from so long ago, they were finally able to let loose and unburden themselves.

The libretto is well-written, but the credit should go to the cast who improvised much of the opera as there were no clear guidelines as to how it should be played. This goes to show the professionalism of Rachel and the others (although music is their passion, not their employment) who devised the structure of the play.

I think chamber opera is a difficult method of song as basically you are talking to music, with little in the way of musical structure. The diction has to be perfect and make sense while the voice rises and falls to show the emotion behind it.

Saturday's show was a preview for the world-premier performance at the Capitol. Theatre in Bendigo on Sunday.

Hats off to all. You did, and will do, great.

Reminder - Train Coming to Dunolly

This Saturday, 13th October, a train will be coming to Dunolly as part of an effort to put pressure on political parties coming up for election to honour their policies and commitment to extend the Maryborough passenger service to Dunolly. The service to Dunolly was closed in October 1981 by the Hamer Liberal Government under the New Deal timetable for regional Victoria., which consigned country residents to a cramped, inferior and inefficient coach service that still runs today.

The reintroduction of Dunolly to the Regional Rail Network will establish the town as a destination again and provide the townspeople with connection and improved mobility and a positive impact to the town's economy, cultural and social events, and tourism.

The train will arrive in Dunolly at 11.58am and depart 12.46pm. This will give passengers a brief period to view Dunolly and have some lunch at local businesses.

Locals are encouraged to go to the rail station to meet and greet.

The cost of the full trip Newport to Dunolly return is $120; half trip $80 and single sections $30. Bookings are essential. Phone Noel Laidlaw 0448 568 429.

Message from the Premier

This week is Fire Action Week, a time for all Victorians to start planning for a long and hot summer ahead.

Low rainfall over winter has dried out much of the state and forecasts from the Bureau of Meteorology of a dry and hot summer means that we need to prepare for an earlier and longer fire season.

Our dedicated emergency services are working with communities, businesses and local councils to reduce the risk for our state.

Recent bushfires – both here in Australia and overseas – remind us of the need to understand our own fire risk.

Planning and preparing for fire is a responsibility that belongs to everyone.

So please, talk to your family, friends and neighbours about your plans, and make sure you know when to leave and where to go to stay safe.

You can also find out more information, monitor warnings and check the daily Fire Danger Ratings at emergency.vic.gov.au

Taking the right steps now could make all the difference.

Premier of Victoria

FIRE ACTION WEEK

THE RIGHT TIME TO PREPARE

IT'S YOUR RESPONSIBILITY TO BE READY THIS SUMMER.

Prepare your property, fire plan and emergency kit now.

The reasons are black and white.

emergency.vic.gov.au

Download the VicEmergency app

1. Plan what you'll do in the event of a fire, talk to your household and know where to access information on high risk days.
2. Keep grass short. Fire can ignite and travel quickly through long grass.
3. Get rid of dry grass, leaves, twigs and loose bark around your home.
4. Remove or prune shrubs near windows and under branches of mature trees.
5. Cut back overhanging tree branches close to property – no branches within 10 metres.
6. Keep gutters and roof areas clear of leaf litter (if you are physically able to).
7. Remove all materials from around the home that could burn, such as boxes, furniture and woodpiles.

Le Tour

Stevie donned his helmet and went for a ride. He commenced slowly, stretching out his leg muscles and gradually warming up. He settled into a fast cadence in a low gear to begin with. He could push a higher gear with more exertion later on. The air smelled of springtime and cut flowers as the city receded behind him. The road undulated in a pleasing roller-coaster fashion under a blue sky.

"Argh!" Stevie suddenly shrieked as a black and white feathered missile narrowly missed his right ear. He looked around frantically. The looming shadow on the ground was the only evidence he required to duck another dive-bombing from the magpie. He cried out involuntarily and then formulated his displeasure into words, "Get out of it! Bugger off!"

The magpie banked in a steep turn and hovered above Stevie's head seeking to penetrate his helmet with repeated lunges of its beak. He could feel his helmet shudder with each impact. "Stuff this!" he exclaimed as he shifted onto the largest chaining. He puffed and panted in an effort to suck in enormous amounts of oxygen for his strenuous get-away. The magpie swooped twice more, its wingtips smacking together, making a sound not unlike the cracking of a whip. Satisfied, the bird retreated to a far-off tree.

Stevie kept up the pace for a while until he felt safe. As he slowed to a more manageable speed the peloton showed up. Rick, a riding partner, moved alongside. Stevie exchanged pleasantries and regaled Rick with details of the magpie attack. He found that he had to raise his voice to compensate for the noise generated by eighty-odd bicycle tyres rolling on the bitumen. The rushing breeze did not help matters either. Simultaneously Stevie had to concentrate on not accelerating or braking too hard. A moment's inattention would lead to contact with the rider's wheel in front of him and that would result in a crash. Unfortunately pile-ups in a peloton occur all too frequently.

"Whoa!" Stevie shouted as the peloton came to an abrupt halt. As is usual, unaffected riders took off up the road whilst the fallen were left to extricate themselves from the mass of tangled bodies and bicycles. Rick had managed to counter-steer around the obstacle and had sailed off into the distance. Stevie was unimpressed with one of the marshals who, in his enthusiasm, was attempting to remove a fallen bicycle from the road with its rider still attached.

The peloton had dispersed by the time Stevie got going again and other riders gradually slipped away and disappeared until he was by himself once more. The road morphed into a steepening gradient as it wound up the flank of an impressive forested mountain. Stevie hoisted himself out of the saddle in order to maintain his upward momentum. At the top of the pass, the road degenerated into a rutted single-track descent which he had been anticipating with gusto. He whooped and hollered all the way down as he whistled past towering stands of mountain ash. "Yahoo!" he screamed into the wind. "Yee-haw!"

At the bottom his heart was racing and his breathing laboured. He decided that the work-out was probably enough for one day. He took a moment to recover and savour the ride. He had sweated buckets and needed a shower. Stevie reached up and removed the fully immersive virtual reality helmet and set it beside the stationary bike. He headed for the bathroom - Le Tour De Apartment 1406-B was over for now.

After his shower, as he was towelling himself down, he noticed multiple text messages on his phone. They were from the office of the building manager and all exuded the same hostile tone. The messages reminded him that he was in violation of Body Corporate regulations and in breach of his lease, in relation to the amount of noise issuing from his apartment.

Stevie was unconcerned and felt peckish after his ride. He decided to slip out for a bite to eat. As he was leaving the apartment he noticed several threatening post-it notes affixed to the wall and also what appeared to be fist-marks where neighbours had hammered on the door. Of course, he had been unable to hear their complaints from beneath the head-set. Stevie shrugged; that was the price of physical fitness in the twenty-first century. Thinking it prudent to venture farther afield lest he bump into one of the aggrieved parties, Stevie sauntered away from his arcology and into the wider metropolis in search of something palatable.

It was a very interesting evening with a good attendance of

It's time to Walk to School

Primary school students in Loddon Shire are being encouraged to walk, ride or scoot to and from school or their bus stop during October as part of VicHealth's Walk to School program.

As part of this year's program, Council will work with local primary schools to deliver a range of activities around Walk to School. Colouring and photo competitions will also run from 8th October to 2nd November, with some great prizes to be won.

Local schools that participate in Walk to School will receive certificates to celebrate their students' achievements and will also be in the running for a series of prizes provided by VicHealth.

The Walk to School program is a free, easy and fun way for kids to learn healthy habits and achieve the recommended 60 minutes of physical activity, every day. The program has been made possible in Loddon Shire thanks to a Walk to School grant of $10,000 from VicHealth. To find out more about Walk to School, visit www.walktoschool.vic.gov.au.

World War 2 book launch

On Sunday 14 October the Pyramid Hill and District Historical Society will be launching its World War 2 book. The book details the huge endeavour of the area in coming together (including school children) for the war effort. This is despite experiencing drought, dust storms and with very little money available.

The book will be launched by former Federal Member for Murray Sharman Stone, now Ambassador for Women. Sharman's father Harvey Bawden, as well as Lloyd Mills are the only remaining World War 2 veterans in the Pyramid Hill and District area. The book launch will include a presentation featuring Harvey and Lloyd telling their war experiences.

The Pyramid Hill and District Historical Society World War 2 book launch will take place on Sunday 14 October at 1.15pm at the Pyramid Hill Memorial Hall. The book will be available for purchase at the launch.

Everyone is welcome to attend. The historical society is also hoping many former Pyramid Hill and District residents will come along to the launch.

For more information, contact Pyramid Hill and District Historical Society Secretary Helen Stevens on 0481 367 585.

Are you fire ready?

This week is Fire Action Week which means now is the time for Central Goldfields Shire residents to start preparing for the upcoming fire season.

Fire Action Week, 7 to 14 October, is Victoria's annual fire planning and preparation awareness week.

No matter where you live in Central Goldfields Shire – whether you're in a town or on a farm – your property is likely to be at high to extreme bush or grass fire risk.

Right now, forecasts show that there is potential for an earlier and longer fire season in Victoria.

Fire Action Week is a time to increase your understanding of the fire risk where you live, prepare your property, and talk to your loved ones about what you'll do to stay safe from fire.

Residents should also prepare their properties by:

- Clearing undergrowth and fallen branches
- Moving firewood away from the house
- Cleaning leaves from gutters
- Ensuring that grass is cut

For more information on how to get prepared for summer, go to www.emergency.vic.gov.au

Summer Workshops

We have some upcoming summer workshops that are developed to extend your creative skill set and have fun while you create!

First workshop is Collage! It starts on October 10th at 10am and the cost is $5 per session.

Collage is a technique of art production where the artwork is made from an assemblage of different forms. These forms are reapplied to create new works.

To kick start us off in collage we are going to work as a group to create a multi-panel installation that will remain at the Dunolly Art Hub as a permanent piece. The themes will link-in directly to the Art Hub environment. It would be a lovely way to introduce yourselves to a welcoming group of creative people.

Please bring along some tweezers to assist you in paper placement and to keep base paper clean.

There is more to come!

Upcoming workshops at the Art Hub include printmaking, using scratchboard and zine- making.

40 GARAGE SALES THIS SATURDAY 13th OCTOBER

Watch out for traffic, there will be people everywhere! Red bands will be on poles at the streets where a sale or sales are. You will find a bargain, you will meet many people and it will be a great day.

Maps are free and are available at the CFA stand, All Day On Broadway (fish shop) and at the Arts Hub. Look out for signs and balloons where there is a sale.

The Little Green Wagon will be at the Arts Hub with information on composting, worm farms and all things garden. Take the time to have a look and also grab a bargain from our rummage sale.

We wish that all those who are having a sale have nothing left at the end of the day, and those who are buying find just that thing you have been looking for.

Have a great day!

If you would like more information on any of the above or you have an idea or a program you would like to run we are always ready to listen! Please ring 5468 1511.

Or just dash off an email to: admin@dunnhc.com.au

Or you are welcome to call in for a cuppa.

Our Prized Butcher

Recently Matt and Billy, our Dunolly butchers, transformed their shop's façade with an eye-catching front window. It really stands out. Less obvious, and possibly not noticed by many of their customers, on the shop's walls are a number of certificates for awards won in the Smallgoods competition.

In 2017 they were finalists in the region for their chilli, chicken and cheese kabana, which qualified them for the 2018 Victorian Smallgoods competition where they won a silver medal for their homemade strass and a gold medal for their kabana. Last week Matt and Billy won a first for kabana, a second for strass and a third for kranski, and finished in the top eight overall.

Congratulations to you both.

We are fortunate to have our butcher shop supplying such a wide range of meat, fish and smallgoods, including readymade meals such as curries and stir fries. Their lamb is always so fresh and tender, which I can vouch for myself.

Thank You

To the lady who rescued me last Thursday afternoon, a big 'thank you'. I had the misfortune to have a fall in my driveway and was unable to get up and couldn't crawl or drag myself due to limited strength in my lower back and legs. I called for help for ages but my near neighbours didn't hear me, or weren't at home. The lady in question working up at the Kindergarten heard me six houses away and came running. She helped me up and got me into the house. I was upset and unsteady as I could have been laying there for hours. As I am now, several days later, still hesitant in moving too far from the house, I put on an apron with a pocket to hold my mobile phone. That way I can ring my neighbours and they will definitely hear me then.
