Music At The Golf Club

The Dunolly Golf Club saw a packed house on Saturday with over one hundred people enjoying fantastic music and beautiful weather in the pleasant surrounds on the edge of town. The music day was the third one held at the club, each one bigger and better than the last. Michael Rayson has been fundraising at the Railway Hotel to stage the event with Jan Stephenson organising a great line up of local and Melbourne talent.

The line up included Thomas Christie from Maryborough who wowed us all with his fabulous voice and Michael Buble style tunes. Oozin Blues and The Groove Dudes, Jan Blake with some great jazz numbers and Six Degrees entertained with beautiful ballads. The highlight for many was the loud and fabulous blues provided by the Sammy Owen Blues Band. They almost lifted the roof!

Maree, Ron and Leanne with 'We're All Fired Up' pizzas along with 'Spuds On The Run' provided a variety of delicious food and donated all their profits for the day to the Golf Club.

Jan Brock provided some yummy scones for afternoon tea and the bar was kept busy during the day.

The aim of the day was to provide some live music for everyone to enjoy and to raise funds for the Dunolly Golf Club in the process. Both aims were successfully achieved.

A good time was had by all who attended. The golf club raised $1600 towards their aim to build a deck onto the club house and generally improve the facilities.

Many thanks to everyone involved in making the day such a success and to all those who attended. Stay tuned for further events later in the year.

ROSIE'S RAMBLE

I was listening to a discussion on the radio last week about the use of camera phones at events like concerts and at the art gallery. Do the owners of these devices think if they don't take a picture, they are not where they are; or is it they think all their friends will think they are fibbers unless they can show a photo? I could not think of anything more annoying than going to see an exhibition of, say, Rembrandt and having hordes of selfie takers pouting in front of a masterpiece.

After that rain the other night I opened the door to let the cool air in, and was greeted by roughly a million crickets shouting "Alleluia."

Has the world gone completely mad, or just getting too lazy for words? I see one of the selling points of a new model fridge is that it has an internal camera so that you don't have to go to all the trouble of opening the door to check the contents.

When Geoff and Jeff sold out, I bought a copy of Wolf Creek as I hadn't seen it. I still haven't—I can't persuade friends or family to watch it with me! Perhaps I should have played it for our English visitors last week?

Wasn't the big, red blue moon wonderful! I spent about an hour nipping in and out keeping an eye on the progress of the eclipse. It was pretty cold at 11.45 that night, but worth it.

Woolies used to have a separate counter for the "peculiar" fruit and Veg. which was a bit cheaper than the "proper" produce. Now I find it is hidden among the regular produce, and much harder to find. Deliberate?

Quote from sports reporter at the Davis Cup—"The doubles players were under the umbrage of Lleyton Hewitt. "Quite possibly, as they had just been beaten. (umbrage—shadow; feeling of resentment)

Dream of a better world where a chicken can cross the road without having his motives questioned.

From the internet

Found this in my notebook -

2 1/2 cups of hot water—cook 2 mins—stir well—cook 1 min—stand one minute. (No idea!!!)

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Thankyou...to all who have congratulated me on receiving the 'Citizen of the Year' award. Although I knew I had been nominated, it was a surprise to actually be recognised this way. The arts sector is very often regarded as of little importance, and community art even more so... So I see this as an acknowledgement of the value the arts can contribute to our community. This year, with the added financial input from the Regional Centre for Culture towards several projects in Dunolly, we will see a lot more activity! Watch the Welcome Record...and the Imagination Station for updated information on workshops and exhibitions, and join in.

Travels with Cynthia

To continue where I left off last time- my girlfriends had left Stockholm for Oslo and I had been working in a restaurant and staying with a Swedish family to earn some more cash to continue on. When Elsa's parents heard I was going to hitchhike to Oslo on my own, they were horrified and tried to talk me out of it. I can't think why I didn't get a train there but it seems I had made up my mind so Elsa's father drove me out of the city to a likely spot to get a ride.

I had to walk a fair way before someone finally stopped. It was a smartly dressed businessman in a big sleek car. I felt a bit worried after I accepted and climbed in next to the driver but he was a perfect gentleman and took me as far as his turn off. Once more I took to the road and along came a little farm truck filled with hay and driven by a young rosy cheeked lad, with stiff blond hair, wearing work overalls. He seemed a very safe bet and I got in without a second thought. As we had no common language, I used my phrase book to communicate and explain why I was on the road alone. After a while my little farm boy turned off into a side road and stopped the truck. He then asked for my phrase book and after riffling through a few pages he found the word "you", then looked for another page and showed me "kiss" and then "me".

In a single action I grabbed my bag, opened the truck door and ran with the farm boy's giggly laughter following me up the road. Phew, I thought, I certainly didn't see that coming.

I then decided to stop at the first bed and breakfast or similar place to stay the night as it was now getting late. I walked for miles and it grew dark and there were very few houses to be seen. Then out of nowhere I saw a light twinkling on a hill and on the road a sign saying in English "Welcome Inn". A miracle. When I staggered in the door I was warmly greeted by the proprietors and how comforting it was to be given a hot meal and a warm bed. In the morning I met some other young travellers, two of whom, a German duo, who had been in the same predicament as me, in that they had given up on finding a stop- over for the night until they came upon the Welcome Inn. We three teamed up and set off for Oslo together and finished up catching a bus as it turned out we were approaching the outskirts of Oslo. I was very happy to re-unite with my two friends at the Youth Hostel and recount my adventures. To this day I cannot believe I was so rash as to set out on the road alone. However I did live to tell the tale.

A Tanberg Tribute

In his excellent tribute to Ron Tandberg last week, Brian Burbridge referred to a cartoon donated by Ron, which was auctioned here in Dunolly at a "Save Dunolly Hospital" fundraiser. As a fan of Ron's incisive and amusing contributions to The Age, I attended the auction intending to obtain the work. I was the winning bidder and the framed artwork, occupies pride of place in my home. I also won things I hadn't intended to win - a guided tour (thoroughly enjoyed), of the Tarnagulla Poverty Mine decline, for instance!

At the time of the auction, Ginny the escaped elephant, and the Victorian government's decision to log old-growth forests, were both prominently covered in the media. Ron brilliantly combined both issues in his cartoon in which Ginny was caught because there was no forest left in which she could hide!

No obfuscating politician was safe from Ron's cutting humour. One cartoon that springs to mind is a two-drawing offering - in panel one a small child asks his father, "Dad, what's a tosser?" His father replies, "You'll know one when you see one!" Drawing two is wordless and shows the child pointing to Tony Abbott on the TV screen as his dad nods approvingly. He also drew two identical impressions of an aloof-looking Malcolm Fraser (when he was PM); the first was captioned "The public perception of Malcolm Fraser", and the second, "The real Malcolm Fraser!" One of his last cartoons depicts himself in hospital wielding his drip-stand against Death's scythe.....

There has been some suggestion of an exhibition of Ron's work and I've offered the Ginny cartoon to his family should this occur.

Ron will be missed.

Murray Hall.

Community Satisfaction Survey 2018 interviews to take place

Residents are advised that from Monday 5 February, for the period of up to three weeks, your household may receive a phone call from an independent market research agency, National Field Services.

They have been commissioned to conduct a community satisfaction survey on behalf of Central Goldfields Shire Council.

Similar surveys will be undertaken across Victorian councils in the coming months.

The survey has been designed to assess the performance of Central Goldfields Shire across a range of measures to identify ways to provide improvement or more effective service delivery to residents.

The survey will involve telephone interviews conducted among a representative sample of 400 residents.

We appreciate you taking the time to assist us with your valuable feedback.

Please be assured that your details and individual responses are confidential. Only the overall results are shared with Central Goldfields Shire.

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact the Central Goldfields Shire Council Customer Service Team on 5461 0610.

Municipal Public Health and Wellbeing Plan adopted

At an Ordinary Meeting of Central Goldfields Shire Council, the Municipal Public Health and Wellbeing Plan 2017-2021 was adopted.

Central Goldfields Shire Council Chief Administrator Noel Harvey said the four-year plan aims to improve health and wellbeing in the municipality.

"The Plan provides Council with a strategic approach to local public health planning and aims to protect and improve the public health and wellbeing of our local community.

"It outlines a Plan for how Council will work towards achieving maximum health and wellbeing for the municipality over the next four years."

The Plan was informed through a community consultation process which involved

Central Victoria Primary Care Partnership, Asteria Services, Maryborough District Health services, Go Goldfields team, Women's Health Loddon Mallee, and Department of Health and Human Services (VIC).

The community was also consulted over a six week period including an online survey and focus group discussions. The Plan is available to view here: www.centralgoldfields.com.au

Murray Basin Rail project update

The Ararat to Maryborough line has reopened for driver training. The reopening of the 87-kilometre rail corridor more than a decade after the last train rolled through follows an intensive works program.

Over the past six months, work crews have laid more than 130,000 concrete sleepers, distributed almost 200,000 tonnes of ballast and used 7,600 tonnes of steel rail. With trains returning, we ask the community to be aware of trains operating and to take care around level crossings.

For more information about changes to train operations in your area, visit www.murraybasinrailproject.com.au

Heritage Grants to help preserve local icons

The Andrews Government is helping restore some much loved heritage assets in Western Victoria.

Member for Western Victoria, Jaala Pulford, today announced that round three of the Labor Government's Living Heritage Program is now open.

Ms Pulford said the program is giving communities across Western Victoria the resources they need to protect our treasured heritage.

"Our heritage is a reminder of the broad scope of our history. It enriches our experiences and reflects the community's sense of cultural identity and creates a great sense of pride," Ms Pulford said.

"We need to take great care of our heritage assets and these grants will help deliver repairs and upgrades to ensure our treasured heritage will remain part of our identity for many decades to come," she said.

"I encourage community groups to get involved and apply for funding through these grants," Ms Pulford said.

This is the biggest boost to heritage assets in Victorian history, funding the repair and restoration of iconic venues all over the state including the RSL Institute in Bendigo, the Polly Woodside in Melbourne and the Reid's Coffee Palace building in Ballarat.

Round three of the $36.5 million Living Heritage Grants Program closes on the 13th of April, 2018, with successful projects to be announced mid-year.

TARNAGULLA TALK

Australia Day was a wonderful celebration for Tarnagulla. Dorothy Silke was the deserving recipient of the 2018 Tarnagulla Community Service Award for outstanding service to her local community. Some children received certificates for their Australia Day competition entries and four babies received welcome plaques.

Our speaker this year was Kerry Anderson, author of 'Entrepreneurship: It's Everybody's Business'. She spoke of the benefits of rural town living; something close to all our hearts.

This year the Australia Day celebrations were hosted by Tarnagulla Primary School. It was lovely to have some school children to lead us for the singing of our anthem.

It was a very hot day but luckily the weather cooled slightly before the formalities. We enjoyed our BBQ tea indoors in the airconditioned hall. Ice cream cones were enjoyed by young and old after our meal. Luckily we were inside before the downpour (except for our cheeky Tarnagulla children who took advantage of their parents being busy and frolicked in the rain!). All in all it was a fantastic afternoon. I'm looking forward to next year's celebration at Arnold.

The Australia Day BBQ lunch at the pub was well attended and included champagne and an Aussie Quiz. I might try and attend next year. It sounds like fun!

School Chatter

The school year is in full swing. We are happy to welcome Mrs Spiers to our little school along with a few new students!

Our biggest news at Tarnagulla Primary School is that we have begun our swimming program. We are enjoying daily bus trips to Dunolly Pool where we are improving our swimming skills. Look out for photos on the Tarnagulla Primary School Parents & Friends Facebook page. Please like us to follow our news and support our fun efforts to raise money for our school.

ICE FOR THE GOLDFIELDS

Ice in your drink on the goldfields was an expensive luxury as it had to be brought out from the east coast of USA.

It was the Geelong inventor, James Harrison, who first developed a process for making ice in 1851. This led to the first ice-making machine in 1854. He improved his patent in 1855. This was a major Australian invention that often just gets a passing mention in history. He also developed a cooling process for breweries, thus starting a tradition in Australia of drinking cold beer.

By the time of the Dunolly Rush in 1856, Harrison was producing 3 tons of ice per day at his Geelong Factory. His process was expensive and he suffered a lot of buyer resistance from the public who believed pure ice was better than the manufactured product. So for several years ice production competed with imported ice.

In northeast USA the first icing of the season occurred in July 1856. The same time as the Dunolly Rush took off. There were two types of ice production in USA. Carvers were sent out to cut off blocks in frozen lakes. There were also farmers who had purpose built containers they filled with water. They could then harvest blocks of ice of consistent size and shape.

These blocks were loaded on barges and floated downstream to Boston.

They were loaded on the Clasca and packed in sawdust to reduce evaporation. The Clasca left Boston for Melbourne on 8th August. Despite being only 658 tons the ship carried 600 tons of ice and eight passengers. Clipper ships were preferred as they were the fastest ships available and could do the trip quicker than any steamship. Their only risk was being caught in the doldrums crossing the equator.

After a four-month voyage the Clasca docked in Port Melbourne in early December 1856. The ice was loaded onto a special train to Flinders St, then taken by cart to the Melbourne Ice Works in Queen St. Here they were able to advertise the first ice shipment for the season. The Melbourne Ice Works delivered in bulk only to the inner suburbs at a rate of 5<sup>d</sup> per lb.

This left a speculative opportunity for the goldfields. Carters could buy blocks of ice then try and make it to Dunolly in three days or less.

At Dunolly the block of ice was jealously guarded by the bartender. He would use an ice pick and break off a chip only for those who paid for it. Ice in your drink was just as expensive as the actual drink. Ice was just as much a status symbol of the decadence of the successful miner as it was for actually cooling a drink down.

MINING NAMES

Red Streak Lead – This is a common place name at Dunolly and many other goldfields. The term red streak is given to Pliocene leads. Leads from this epoch are rich in iron oxide. These rocks, when rubbed on the skin, leave a red streak.

Smugglers Glen, Mt Moliagul – In the 1850s there was an illicit still hidden in a gully on the north side of Mt Moliagul. It supplied alcohol to the numerous sly grog tents on the goldfields.

Cockatoo Gully, Smugglers Glen – Two miners on their way to Mt Korong in the summer of 1852 followed some cockatoos to find water. They then dug a hole and found gold.

Gibraltar Hill, Craigie – Named because the ground was thought to be as hard as the Rock of Gibraltar.

Majorca – It was named after the Spanish island because of two nearby earlier rushes called Gibraltar and Minorca.

Malcolm's Painting & Decorating

We have a stunning exhibition of Traditional Chinese Ink paintings being held this weekend at the Arts Hub.

Susie Oh is the host & artist of this exhibition. She is using the opportunity to fund raise for her coming trip to Japan to compete in Karate. There are prints, cards and fridge magnets available - something for everyone. Entry is a gold coin and, the exhibition is well worth a look. Buy a raffle ticket and be in the draw for one of Susie's prints.

The exhibition is on Saturday 10th and Sunday 11th February from 10am until 2pm at the Arts Hub on the corner of Alice & Thompson Streets. We will be starting a series of workshops at the end of February that will be led by artist Jo Osbourne. They will be exercises in art, to improve your skills, unlock inspiration and learn new skills. The workshops, in a nutshell, will help "Get your Art Mojo Back". We all have artistic skills but over time forget them, lose confidence or don't even realize that we have artistic abilities. Art is a therapeutic, relaxing way to express yourself and give yourself some 'me time'. These workshops will be once a week or possibly on a weekend, and will go for a few hours. We will attempt to keep costs low. Please let us know your preferences via Facebook page (Dunolly Arts Hub)

Kids Club @ Art Hub will be back in Term 2 for more artistic shenanigans.

Raising your child in the digital world

Navigating the world of screen time and internet use can be pretty tricky when it comes to your kids. Children can tap, swipe and pinch before they can talk or tie their shoelaces, and understandably, parents are worried about the effect it will have on their child's physical health and development growing up.

Join online expert Stefania Cola, founder of Bendigo-based website design company, Doomsday Tuna, for parental guidance in the digital age.

Goldfields Libraries is thrilled to have Stefania back after the success of her previous workshops 'Staying Safe on Social Media' and 'Job Seeking in the Digital World'.

Stefania will run three sessions at Goldfields Libraries which will leave you with some great tools to plan your family's digital boundaries, because technology doesn't have to be scary.

All sessions are free and will run at Kyneton, Bendigo and Castlemaine Libraries in February. Bookings are essential and can be made online via www.goldfieldslibraries.com

This week's value in focus is:

Confidence

Believing in myself and challenging my abilities

Around school this week :

Welcome to the start of the year ! Such a seamless transition for our 7 preps starting today after 6 months of transition visits last year. Once again lots of exciting things happening. On the holidays we had a new cricket wicket installed, we revamped the middle space in the senior building to a learning hub and concreted a stage under the shade sail thanks to funding from the PFA !

As we start another year I'd like to reiterate to all parents/carers our 'open door' policy. If you ever have any queries, concerns, positive feedback or worries; PLEASE contact us for a chat or to arrange a meeting. Often a quick call can clarify any issues and we also love to hear your feedback. Staff are often preparing for the day ahead with students in their rooms before school, so we do ask you catch up with teachers AFTER school so they can give you the time required, in a confidential manner.

Consider joining our PFA ! This group does amazing things at our school and funds projects like the seating last year and the new stage plus much, much more like subsidising excursions and swimming.

Morning Munch

- ❖ Morning Munch every Thursday
- ❖ Free breakfast served from 8.05am to 8.30am in the multi purpose room
- ❖ All students welcome
- ❖ Next week, to kick start this year's program parents are invited to come along and join their child for breakfast.

The Rise And Fall Of Emma Hawhurst

Emma Hawhurst was on the crest of a wave; surfing a rising arc; on top of her game. At thirty years of age she was young to be elected Mayor of a regional municipal council but her ambition was boundless. As a successful businesswoman, she aspired to be a real mover and shaker. If recent wins were anything to go by, she was achieving those goals admirably. Emma ensured that she looked the part: crisp linen skirts, sensible shoes and a restrained display of jewellery. Her white Mercedes-Benz E-class Cabriolet sparkled in the sunlight. It was parked in a personal space directly opposite her (contrastingly) austere Council office.

The general populace loved Emma and with good reason. She had agitated for better mobile 'phone coverage - black-spots being a safety issue. A new tower had been constructed and now everyone was connected. She had succeeded in reinstating the mobile library service which the previous administration had discontinued. She had lobbied for the return of trains to a disused line and now they were running again, providing valuable public transportation for all.

The people showed their affection for Emma in many small ways. She had asked Dylan, her fresh-faced but highly competent administrative aide, to arrange for her Mercedes to be washed and polished. He reported that there was no need. Silently and stealthily the car had been detailed already by persons unknown. Late one night Emma and Dylan were working their way through a veritable mountain of documents. Emma was attempting to correlate proposals submitted by widely disparate groups and considering which side she should support. Without notice a delivery-driver appeared and brought in multiple pizzas, garlic bread and soft drinks. An anonymous well-wisher had organised and paid for the delivery. Actually, Emma acknowledged that such generosity was becoming a trifle embarrassing. She no longer had to pay for petrol - on the house! Groceries materialized on her door-step - no payment required! Even her dog, Stanley, was walked and groomed by someone she never saw.

But sometimes (quite often in fact) the fickle public can suffer collective amnesia or only recall certain specific memories. All of a sudden the tide of public opinion turned against Emma. Being a Mayor meant having to propose unpalatable decisions at times for the greater good. She'd had to institute measures to cope with water rationing - much to the annoyance of her once adoring admirers. The main reservoir was down to twenty four percent capacity but the last ten percent was undrinkable and not able to be pumped due to siltation. And, somehow, it was her fault because it had ceased to rain!

Together with the other councillors, she'd had to agree to budget cuts across the board because the State Government had decided to withhold vital funds. This resulted in a reduction of services offered by Council and unemployment for some. How could she be accountable for decisions made elsewhere? Then, of course, there was a corruption and harassment scandal involving the Chief Executive Officer and other staff. How could Emma be held responsible for a deficiency in someone's personality trait?

Well, that was the last straw. Rotten eggs and smashed tomatoes started appearing on her once shiny car. Putrid rubbish was dumped on her front porch. The side-gate was deliberately left ajar and Stanley ran off. Whenever she offered to pay for something she was charged double. Emma shook her head sadly. So much for the power and the glory - for her, local government had failed its true potential and promise.

Dunolly Snags A Winner

2018 is a huge year for the Arts and community with the Regional Center for Culture rolling out across Central Victoria. Dunolly's Ministry of Fun and the Dunolly District inc. have secured funding for some amazing community projects .

We are proud to host a Deborah Halpern month-long exhibition at our courthouse precinct, along with workshops and opportunity for everyone to contribute to a community sculpture project.

Check out Deborah Halpern's work on google and Instagram - her vibrant colourful sculpture is usually seen in the NGV and across public spaces in Melbourne ..and soon, Dunolly .

This exciting project will begin to roll out in April and will feature in the Tiny Towns Arts Trail, continuing through to late October with a launch and community celebration .

Dunolly has even more planned for April with two weekends of Tiny Towns Arts Trail this year. Red Dog on Broadway, celebrating the dogs in our lives; David Archer's automaton community (affordable!) workshops; Rags to Runway - sustainable recycled fashion work shops and events at the Arts Hub, and more.

Dunolly will share its creative talent along with 10 other tiny towns, across 26 venues with hundreds of artists and makers participating.

Watch this space and find us on FB.

Gold discovery still keeping Dunolly Caravan Park busy

The benefits of a significant gold nugget discovery are still reverberating in the Dunolly community, months after the precious metal was discovered.

After a 320gram gold nugget was discovered in the Dunolly goldfields in September last year, the Dunolly Caravan Park is still reaping the benefits of prospectors, who can make up to 94 percent of the park's patronage, flocking to the town.

Prior to the substantial nugget being found, regular prospectors might have stayed up to three weeks – now they're staying for more than a month, caravan park lease holders Peter and Caryl McFadden say.

"A lot of people have seen the piece of gold and it gave them an incentive to go out and try harder," Mr McFadden said. "We've had a lot more people detecting and subsequently, we've had a lot more gold found." Stopping short of calling it a "mini gold rush",

Mr McFadden described the push for gold as a "renewed effort". Our regulars have been going out and staying out longer," he said. While there is "most definitely" gold still out in the goldfields, the McFadden's say prospecting isn't without its challenges. "It is a lot harder.

Twenty years ago, if the guys weren't finding three ounces (85grams) a day, they were having a bad one," Mr McFadden said. "These days, if they're finding anywhere between three and 10 grams, they're having a great day. It's still as popular as ever," he said.

According to Mr McFadden, most of the gold found in Dunolly is within a 15 kilometre radius of the town, or even in Dunolly itself. We had a guy walking down the road with his head down and found a 15 gram piece of gold. We get all sorts of stories like that," Mr Mc Fadden said.

A grand effort by the Blues, winning by 41 shots over Newstead, thereby cementing their position at the top of the first-division ladder. The results from the other teams were less inspiring, but there were some close results on some rinks. With one home and away round to go, Dunolly should have all four teams playing in the semi finals.

A reminder that following the last home game there will be a Pizza/Fish & Chips dinner at a modest cost of just $8.00 per member. Please select your preference by Friday 9th March.

Kokoro Kai will be hosting the BBQ at the Market, this Sunday 11th Feb.

And just for a bit of fun, we will have a Water bomb challenge!

People visiting the Market can purchase three water balloons for $1 - which they can throw at our Karate instructors to test out their speed and reflexes as they try to block, kick or catch them!

IF the instructors can catch them, without them bursting, the instructors can then turn on each other!

No members of the public will be wet at this event - only two of our instructors!

Come along and join in the fun.
