80-year old warns residents of scams after losing $26K

An 80-year-old Maryborough resident has fallen victim to a pre-Christmas scam, losing a total of $26,000.

Magi Fowler, who moved to Maryborough last year, said she won't take it "lying down" and doesn't want anyone else to go through what she did.

"After it all happened I thought to myself, 'I've got to do something to stop other people suffering the same thing'. It was just awful," she said. "We moved here in July and my husband passed away not long after. The money was for some renovations the house needed. They almost cleaned out the account."

Ms Fowler said she was lucky to have realised what was happening before she lost more money. "I banged my head against the wall when I realised what had happened," she said. "I wanted to crawl under the table and hide for a while, but then I just got angry. I'm lucky they didn't take anything from my other account because that's where my pension goes. I live off that." Ms Fowler is the victim of a remote access scam, where scammers claim to need access to your computer to fix it or your internet.

Ms Fowler said she received a suspicious phone call and hung up the phone, but the scammers persisted.

"They said they were from Telstra and my internet had been running slow, they told me they needed to access my computer to fix it," she said. I hung up the phone straight away, but they called back the next day and said they were very serious, they thought I was being scammed."

Ms Fowler was told she was going to be employed to help uncover the scammers who were attempting to access her computer.

"They told me I was getting paid to help uncover scammers trying to access my computer. They showed me the money going into my account," she said. "It was exciting I suppose. It was a bit of good news and I was just gullible. It was a different approach to what I've heard of other people having. It was awful."

Despite losing $26,000 in a scam just prior to Christmas, 80-year-old Magi Fowler is all smiles and seeking to raise awareness of scamming in the community so others don't have to face the same thing.

To catch the scammers, Ms Fowler had to provide remote access to her computer and purchase iTunes cards to lure them in. The cards alone were valued at $2000 and with remote access to her computer, the scammers gained access to her bank accounts. Although warned by local retail outlets about the iTunes card scam, Ms Fowler said the scammers were too convincing and told her not to tell anyone about her new 'job'.

"I'm not a stupid person normally, I was just a bit hazy those few days. They say your brain gets smaller as you get older," she said.

"Last year was all over the place for me; my husband died, I broke my shoulder and bought a house. "I think they (the scammers) are targeting people who are vulnerable and isolated. I'm very lucky to have such wonderful neighbours and friends."

Ms Fowler is urging community members not to answer calls from suspicious numbers. "I don't want to remain anonymous with this, I don't care if people laugh at me in the street. I just don't want anyone else to have this happen to them," she said.

Ms Fowler said she plans to speak with various local groups and organisations in a bid to raise awareness of the risks of scamming and her experiences.

Constable Michael McAuley, from the Central Goldfields Crime Investigation unit, recommends that residents contact the police if they notice anything suspicious or believe they have been scammed.

"Anything that doesn't seem right or looks suspicious, give us a call at the station and we can point you in the right direction and give you some tips," he said. Constable McAuley said reputable organisations, such as Telstra, will not call unless requested and will not ask for iTunes cards to be purchased. "That type of behaviour is suspicious straight away," he said.

"If an organisation asks for something like that, I would be calling the police for advice. Reputable organisations just won't do that sort of thing. These things are quite hard. If you're unsure, firstly I'd recommend calling the station and seeking some advice and secondly I'd visit ACORN's website for more information."

In December alone there were over 800 reports of remote access scams Australia-wide, totalling almost $170,000 in losses. Australians lost over $107 million to scams in 2018.

ROSIE'S RAMBLE

It's marvellous what you notice while sitting in the car park with your mind in neutral. I was watching the sparrows picking insects from the front grill of parked cars. They were going round the back of cars to get to the front of the next one—how do they know the difference?

I suppose the graphic “gopher” (gofer?) signs at Havilah village have been there for ages, but I only noticed them the other day. They make a change from kangaroo and horse signs.

I have been reading an article about Caroline Chisholm—a great pioneer woman. It was written in 1993 (some op-shop magazines are quite old) when her face was taken off the five dollar note, and replaced by the Queen. This annoyed a lot of people. Thomas Keneally, the writer, reckoned it was a shame. Even though the Queen was well-liked, her day was waning. Twenty-six years later she is still here!

News reader informed us that retiring politician had been in Parliament for 30 decades - that's 300 years!

It may seem that long—but I think she meant three decades.

Isn't it nice to see some up-and-coming tennis players who seem to know how to behave? Those two Australians are always called boys. They are not—they are in their twenties and after 23, men's brains are supposed to be mature.

Good luck to Ash Barty on Tuesday 22nd.

Baby commemorative medals and kindergartener books

Registrations are closing soon for community members to sign up their newborns or four-year-olds to receive a commemorative medal or children's book respectively on Australia Day.

An annual tradition, Central Goldfields Shire Council is presenting commemorative medals to all children born in 2018 and Go Goldfields is providing free children's books to four-year-olds who are starting kinder in 2019.

The commemorative medals and children's books will be presented at the Shire's Australia Day celebrations in Maryborough on Saturday 26th January, 2019.

To register a newborn child for a commemorative medal, email a copy of their birth certificate to mail@cgoldshire.vic.gov.au or mail to Central Goldfields Shire Council PO Box 194, Maryborough, 3465 by Friday 25th January, 2019.

To register a four-year-old child starting kindergarten in 2019 to receive a free book, email their name, the kindergarten they are attending, a parent's name and contact number to mail@cgoldshire.vic.gov.au by Friday 25th January, 2019.

Central Goldfields Shire Chief Administrator Noel Harvey said the presentation of commemorative medals and children's books is a popular tradition in the Shire.

"It is really pleasing to see how popular the commemorative medals and free children's books are every Australia Day.

"The children's books help promote literacy outcomes in our Shire while the commemorative medals are a nice memento of a child's birth year."

Railway Street, Gillies Street intersection upgrade

Our Works team is currently upgrading the Gillies and Railway streets' intersection.

There is a road closure to all motorists except to local traffic from the Gillies and Railway streets' intersection to Fuller Street.

The approximate $150,000 upgrade will include new kerb and channel islands and is estimated to be complete in four weeks.

Changes to Green Waste Service

Due to subscriber expectations of bagged compost associated with the Green Waste Service, the number of bags will be limited to one per customer per month to ensure fairness in distribution.

This will be reviewed as changes in processing are implemented.

Users of the service are reminded that the service charge is primarily for the collection of kerbside green waste, and the availability of bagged compost is a bonus in return as available.

Poor campfire knowledge fans fire fears

Only one-in-four Victorians know how to extinguish a campfire

21 January 2019: Park Rangers are concerned by survey findings that just over a quarter of people know how to correctly extinguish a campfire.

When presented with two options, only 26% of people correctly identified that water should be poured onto a campfire. The remaining 74% thought that a fire should be extinguished by covering it with soil or sand. Campfires must always be fully extinguished with water, not soil, and must be cool to touch before being safe to leave.

The findings come during a peak time for camping and as Victoria, one of the most fire-prone areas in the world, experiences a period of high temperatures.

With around 10% of bushfires caused by campfire negligence, Park Rangers have been out-and-about reminding people of fire regulations and to be aware of the very dry conditions.

In addition to assisting park visitors, Park Rangers perform an important role as firefighters and will be responding to bushfire situations this summer. The survey, conducted last month, also revealed half of respondents didn't know where and when a campfire could be lit in a national park. In national parks, campfires may only be lit where designated fireplaces are provided. Fires are prohibited on days of Total Fire Ban. Information about campfires is available from the Forest Fire Management website. Before heading out to camp, people should also check the Parks Victoria website for any changes to park conditions.

Travels with Cynthia

"I've been to Bali too", so the song goes, and it is certainly a very popular holiday place for Australians, being so close to us and cheaper than a trip to Darwin.

I was one of those tourists back in the 80s and I know the island is vastly different now. I went with a good friend and her 13-year-old daughter, who had red hair, which fascinated the Balinese. Quite by coincidence we ran into two of my friend's nursing colleagues and their partners, so we all teamed up for a few excursions. We started off at Kuta, which is the mecca of all the tourists, but we had plans to travel further afield. On Kuta beach young children went around selling Bintang beer and bottles of water. They were employed by big companies who paid the kids next to nothing. Viv and I befriended two of the little girls on the beach and they told us that it cost money to attend school, so their older sister was the only one who went to school and she taught the younger ones.

We discovered that they lived close to the magnificent Tanah Lot temple, an offshore building perched on a rocky outcrop with a Hindu shrine atop which was approached by a rocky path across the water. The girls told us they had never been there but had always longed to go, so we sent a note home asking permission to take them. It was duly given and it was so heart-warming to see the children's pleasure and excitement as they ran up the steep path and marvelled at the beauty of it all.

At that stage the street sellers were not as persistent and annoying as I heard they later became, and our breakfast boy would sit with us and teach us Indonesian. In turn we would help him improve his English. He directed us to his uncle's café for dinner, but refused money. It was a favour to the nice Australian ladies.

There is another side to tourists however. We noticed a bar called The Pub close to the airport selling cold Fosters beer and apparently a lot of the Aussie blokes propped themselves up on the stools on arrival and barely went further than the beach and then back to the bar. I wonder why they didn't just stay home. I have also seen in the news young tourists behaving drunkenly in the street, baring their bottoms etc, which is very insulting to the Balinese people's code of culture. Some of the Americans who stayed over at the expensive part in Sanur would take bus tours and often stay on the bus and tick off the places of interest in their travel diaries without visiting them.

We went off bemo hopping to Lovina at the top of the island, across the coast from Java, but that's for another time. Alas, bemos are no more as they have been replaced by more modern forms of transport.

Community Climate Change Adaption grants now open in Western Victoria

A further $1 million is being invested by the Andrews Government to help regional communities prepare for the real impacts of climate change.

The Labor Member for Western Victoria, Jaala Pulford, said the new Community Climate Change Adaptation (3CA) Grants program will fund local projects that build the adaptive capacity and resilience of regional communities in the face of a changing climate.

Ms Pulford said grants of between $25,000 and $75,000 will be available for climate change adaptation projects across Western Victoria.

Eligible projects must either be led by, or implemented in partnership with a local council, traditional owner corporation, community group, or not-for-profit organisation.

Ms Pulford said the 3CA grants program is designed to support a range of project types with a spread of investment across the state.

"The Community Climate Change Adaptation Grants program is about backing local ideas and supporting resilient communities in Western Victoria as we combat climate change," Ms Pulford said.

"There is great work being done across Western Victoria to prepare for the impacts of climate change and this grants program will ensure the good work continues into the future," she said.

Funding is available for two project categories:

- ✦ Projects that build the adaptive capacity for communities and stakeholders to respond or adapt to climate change impacts in their region
- ✦ Projects that deliver tangible actions that help our communities adapt to climate change impacts they are already facing.

The grants are being delivered under the State Government's Supporting our Regions to Adapt program.

Applications close on 31st March, 2019.

For more information visit:

Australia Day Ambassadors announced

David Mann, OAM, and Doug Christie are the Central Goldfields Shire's 2019 Australia Day Ambassadors.

David Mann is the 2019 Australia Day Ambassador for Carisbrook. David is best known for his 3AW Mann About Town show and has a decorated career in radio, having held various roles at the radio station for over four decades.

In 2006, David received an Order of Australia Medal in 2006 for service to the community through a range of police, nursing, heritage and emergency services organisations.

Doug Christie is the 2019 Australia Day Ambassador for Dunolly. Doug is an experienced broadcaster, event producer and marketer who has held senior marketing roles with publicly-listed companies.

As part of his consultancy, Doug is an advisor to many mainstream companies on marketing, communications and business strategy.

The benefits of having an Australia Day Ambassador at local Australia Day celebrations include:

- ◆ The opportunity for your local community to meet and listen to Australians who have distinguished themselves by their contribution to their country
- ◆ They are a drawcard for regional celebrations
- ◆ The chance to hear stories of the Ambassador's achievements which illustrate the many opportunities Australia offers.
- ◆ The opportunity to reinforce the diversity of achievers in Australia.

Central Goldfields Shire Chief Administrator, Noel Harvey, said it was wonderful to have David and Doug – two very well-known and highly esteemed identities – announced as Australia Day ambassadors for our Shire.

"I'm sure the Dunolly and Carisbrook communities are looking forward to welcoming David and Doug to their communities and hearing their Australia Day messages."

Concert at St John's:

Put the date in your diary

In the fine tradition of a "Pleasant Sunday afternoon", the congregation of St John's is hosting a concert between 2.00pm and 3.00pm, to be followed by afternoon tea, on Sunday, 24th March at St John's Anglican Church on the corner of Barkly and Thompson Streets.

This concert is an opportunity to display the qualities of our very special Fincham organ, played by Esme Flett, with additional contributions from Rodney Flett (trombone), Ian Steed (organ) and Rachel Buckley.

We hope this will be an enjoyable community activity for everyone. Tickets are $15.00, including afternoon tea, and will be available before the concert.

Booking is not essential, but we would like to hear from you if you plan to attend, as this will help with seating and catering arrangements.

Looking forward to seeing you on 24th March.

News from the Dojo

On Monday 21st January, members from the Dunolly Karate dojo came together for a water training session at the local Dunolly pool. We usually do one of these sessions in Dunolly at the start of each year!

As always, the session was well attended by our members. It's great to see our members having lots of fun training with friends, using a local Community facility (We are very lucky to have a pool here in Dunolly!) And even some kids from the Community who were there joined in on the fun Karate training in the water!

A great time had by all!

Karate starts back in Dunolly on Monday 4th Feb.

For more information pop in and see Troy between 5.15pm and 5.30pm on Mondays at the Dunolly RSL Hall.

Resignation

We, the Santa Show Committee, are saddened to see Rick Young resign as our president. He was with us for a long time, but as with all things, they change and sometimes those changes can be hard to go with. As often happens in a group of people, there are always going to be differences of opinions. We all try our hardest to work things out and work as a unit.
We were all shocked when we received his letter of resignation, without talking to anyone about how he was feeling so that we could discuss any issues he had.
We all wish Rick nothing but the best in anything he does. He will be missed as he was one of the hardest working of us when organising events. We hope that he will still help out on the day as he is the main person the kids come to see.

WHAT'S YOUR STORY?

What did you do over the Christmas break? Did you go on holidays - maybe camping or glamping. What was your adventure?
Did you finally get stuck into that project you've been putting off for ages?
Did you at last join that class in salsa dancing, pottery making, mosaicking - whatever?
Did your pet do something funny, or maybe it was your kids? Both animals and children are a wealth of funny stories.
Was there a community event you attended that you found interesting?
Maybe something made you a bit hot under the collar and you want to air your views.
We are desperately seeking input for The Welcome Record. As you can tell by the short paper this week, we have little content. WE NEED YOU!!!
Please write a little something to share with the community. You don't have to be a Hemingway, simply write what you feel. We correct grammar and punctuate as required, so you don't need to stress too much. Have a stab at it. You might surprise yourself.

Collections, Connections, and Cocktails: Our First Meeting for 2019

Last Saturday the Collectors' Club began again for the new year. With over 10 people in attendance the wonderful retro snacks didn't last long. The mocktails were devoured, and the whole atmosphere was abuzz with the excitement as we talked and shared our collections.

Dunolly is a small town, but its rich and diverse population certainly have some interesting things to share. We learnt about the attraction of collecting mice, the importance of picking up strange and unusual objects whose use and purpose are a complete mystery, we were able to play a very old musical instrument, and we relived our childhood with some charming prints.

We even discovered how an ordinary item like a handbag can be created as a piece of artwork, why toast racks are more than functional, the elegance of vases, and the fascination in rusty tools and tiny, printer-wrecking trolls.

Collectors of all sorts have a passion and love to celebrate and share. It doesn't matter if it's small, large, or just plain old quirky; these things say something special about us and they are a joy to share with others.

The object of the Collectors Club is to meet new people, learn more about collecting, and enjoy delicious retro snacks.

If you want to be part of this fun afternoon set aside February 16th at 2pm and drop in to Thrifty on Broadway. Anyone and everyone is welcome.
